PERFECTLY IMPERFECT

Featuring 12 geometric designs presented in custom-dyed, sun-faded tones like sienna, desert rose and bone, Brooklyn-based author and designer Athena Calderone's new knotted Moroccan rug collaboration with Beni Rugs, Broken Symmetry, portrays the imperfect perfection of handwoven creations. In designing the collection, Calderone drew inspiration from the structural shapes of Mexican architect Luis Barragán, the asymmetrical repetition of painter Agnes Martin and the deliberate, strong use of color by artist Ethan Cook. "I love to create symmetry and then break it," Calderone says. "I love repetition, order, but I also love to resist the obvious. Somehow there is common ground and a sense of balance in those very imperfections. How I designed this collection follows the same vernacular." benirugs.com

LIKE MOTHER, LIKE DAUGHTER

Ten-year-old Reven Padia envisioned a collection that would bring joy and happiness into homes. She has been influenced by her mother, interior design expert Purvi Padia. "NeverLand was dreamt up during the pandemic," says Reven. "My mom was setting the table for dinner one night and she mentioned how she wished she had something colorful to include, and that's when it came to me. I love color and crafting (and granting wishes!), so I decided to make some hand-dyed napkins for her, and that was how neverLand first started." Her brand features limited-edition tabletop items and accessories including linen dinner napkins, place mats, vases, totes, pouches, hankies, scrunchers, jars, trinket dishes and hats. The pieces are sold not only through email but also at iconic Hamptons shops including Ivy & Bugz, Nest58 and London Jewelers. reven@houseofneverland.com, houseofneverland.com

EYE CANDY

After almost two years of nights in pajamas, star jeweler Emily P. Wheeler is one of many ready to get back to the scene in the chicest way possible. Her Dress Up collection at Mayfair Rocks celebrates the return, featuring two one-of-a-kind collectors pieces—the Belle cuff and earrings—made with ethically sourced morganite and repurposed ebony. "I find so much inspiration in the variety and color that nature has to offer, and love to use rare and unique materials in my work," says Wheeler. "I was immediately drawn to the morganite we used in these pieces because of its cool pink color—it's very uncommon to find morganite in this exact tone, and it happens to be my favorite and signature color." Mayfair Rocks, 19 Main St., East Hampton, mayfairrocks.com; emilypwheeler.com
